All photos, images, etc. on the Manchester Historical Society's website may be used freely by our artists. Although, anyone using an image from that site should reference the site as the source, and if there is a specific attribution for a particular image, i.e. photographer, artist, etc, that should also be included. If you have something specific you would like to paint, email Susan Barlow and she will help you find an image.

There are many photos readily available on the website. You can make copies of them for reference. There are also books on Manchester at the History Center that you may find helpful. "A New England Pattern: The History of Manchester, Connecticut" by William E. Buckley has a number of vintage photos (black and white). Go to the history center and see the new exhibits. MAA is referenced in one of the exhibit cases!
